Introduction

1. On 1 January 1993, the whole of the UK Key was published as Edition L. Since then, on the 1 January each year, with the exception of 1997, certain parts of the Key have been republished. These republished parts, together with the unamended parts of Edition L, collectively constitute the latest edition of the Key.

2. Republished parts fall into two categories:

(a) Complete headings republished to reflect changes of substance, eg new classifying and indexing terms. All pages of these headings carry two part folio marks, separated by an oblique slash, in the bottom left-hand corner:

i) The letter before the slash represents the latest Key Edition at which that page was reprinted.

ii) The letter or number after the slash represents the Key Edition at which that page last had a change of substance.

(b) Pages republished to correct printing errors. These pages carry the designation (e) at the bottom right-hand corner.
