TRADE MARKS ACT 1994

CONSOLIDATED PROCEEDINGS IN THE MATTER OF TRADE
MARK APPLICATIONS
NO. 3703562 & 3703410
BY SHISEIDO COMPANY LIMITED
BOTH TO REGISTER THE TRADE MARK:

BAUM

IN CLASSES 18, AND 3, 4 AND 21
RESPECTIVELY

AND

TWO OPPOSITIONS THERETO
UNDER NO. 433695 & 432312
BY SARAH KIKONI

BACKGROUND & PLEADINGS

1. Shiseido Company Limited (“the applicant”), filed two trade mark applications for the trade mark BAUM. Both of these have been opposed by Sarah Kikoni (“the opponent”). The crux of this decision is that the opponent claims there to be a likelihood of confusion between the applied for mark BAUM and the earlier mark, as shown below:

2. This decision will set out whether there is such a likelihood of confusion. Firstly, pertinent details of the two trade mark applications being opposed are as follows:

Mark: BAUM
UK TM no: 3703562 ('562)
Filing date: 29 September 2021
Priority date: 11 December 2020¹
Publication date: 25 February 2022
Goods: Class 18: bags; pouches; textile bags; textile reusable bags; reusable bags; toilet bags; handbag frames; purse frames; horseshoes; leather; clothing for pets; umbrellas; walking sticks; canes; metal parts of canes and walking-sticks; handles for canes and walking sticks.

Mark: BAUM
UK TM no: 3703410 ('410)

Class 4: Waxes [raw material]; beeswax for use in the manufacture of cosmetics; lanolin for use in the manufacture of cosmetics.

² Priority claimed from EUIPO no. 1495077

Class 21: Cosmetic and toilet utensils; industrial packaging glass containers for cosmetics; make-up removing appliances; applicators for cosmetics; aromatic oil diffusers, other than reed diffusers; reed diffusers being devices for diffusing perfumes, sold empty; plates for diffusing aromatic oil; aromatherapy pots and parts thereof which heat volatile essential oils and emit aromas.

3. Sarah Kikoni (“the opponent”) opposes the application on the basis of Sections 5(2)(b) of the Trade Marks Act 1994 (“the Act”). The opponent is the proprietor of the three “earlier marks”, each of which is for the following trade mark:

4. Specific case details are as follows:

UK TM No: 3456845 ('845')
Goods: Class 25 – see Annex A
Filing date: 9 January 2020
Date of registration: 30 July 2021

UK TM No: 3528826 ('826')
Goods: Classes 4 and 44 – see Annex B

UK TM No: 3621493 ('493')
Goods: Class 3 – see Annex C
Filing date: 9 January 2020
Date of registration: 16 April 2021

5. A summary of the grounds of opposition are as follows:

OPP 433695

6. Opposition number 433695 is against the applied for '562 mark. The opposition relies upon all of the class 25 goods covered by its earlier '845 mark but is only against some of the applied for class 18 goods. These being (those not being opposed have been struck through):

Class 18: bags; pouches; textile bags; textile reusable bags; reusable bags; toilet bags; handbag frames; purse frames; horseshoes; leather; clothing for pets; umbrellas; walking sticks; canes; metal parts of canes and walking-sticks; handles for canes and walking sticks.

7. Opposition number 432312 is against only some of the applied for goods, these being:

Class 3: Dentifrices; false nails; false eyelashes; cotton for cosmetic purposes³

Class 4: Waxes [raw material]; beeswax for use in the manufacture of cosmetics; lanolin for use in the manufacture of cosmetics.⁴

Class 21: Cosmetic and toilet utensils; make-up removing appliances; applicators for cosmetics; aromatic oil diffusers, other than reed diffusers; reed diffusers being devices for diffusing perfumes, sold empty.⁵

8. The opponent states that relies upon some of the goods covered by its '493 registration. These being:

Class 3: Dentifrices; false nails; false eyelashes, cotton for cosmetic purposes,...and including; Reed diffusers; room fragrancing products,...nail polish remover pens, abrasive bands, sheets, strips, rolls,...cloth, sanding sponges,...all purpose cotton buds for personal use, cosmetic use, aromatherapy pillows.

9. The opponent also relies upon some of the goods covered by its '826 registration, these being:

Class 4: Waxes (raw material); beeswax for use in the manufacture of cosmetics; lanolin for use in the manufacture of cosmetics

10. The applicant filed a counterstatement denying the claims made. It also makes various statements which I have read and shall address later in this decision.

³ Earlier relied upon mark '493 is against this class only

⁴ Earlier relied upon mark '826 is against this class only

⁵ Earlier relied upon mark '493 is against this class only

11. As per Section 6A of the Act, as registration of the opponent's marks was completed less than five years before the application date of the contested marks, proof of use is not relevant in these proceedings.
12. Both sides filed evidence in these proceedings. On 28 June 2023 a hearing took place via video link whereby Sarah Kikoni represented herself and the applicant was professionally represented by James Setchell of IPOA Limited.
13. Although the UK has left the EU, Section 6(3)(a) of the European Union (Withdrawal) Act 2018 requires tribunals to apply EU-derived national law in accordance with EU law as it stood at the end of the transition period. The provisions of the Act relied on in these proceedings are derived from an EU Directive. This is why this decision continues to make reference to trade mark case law of EU courts.

Evidence

14. The opponent's evidence consists of two witness statements from Sarah Kikoni. The evidence largely consists of submissions, which I have read. I shall not summarise the evidence here but shall refer to it where necessary in this decision.
15. The applicant's evidence consists of a witness statement and three exhibits from Mr James Setchell, who is a trade mark attorney.
16. Exhibit JCS1 is a Wikipedia extract showing details of the entry for "La Baume". The extract shows that La Baume "is a commune in Haute-Savoie department in the Auvergne-Rhone-Alpes region in south-eastern France." I shall refer to the evidence if necessary in this decision.

DECISION

Section 5(2)(b)

17. The relevant law is as follows:

"A trade mark shall not be registered if because –
b) it is similar to an earlier trade mark and is to be registered for goods or services identical with or similar to those for which the earlier trade mark is protected, there exists a likelihood of confusion on the part of the public, which includes the likelihood of association with the earlier trade mark.

“5A Where grounds for refusal of an application for registration of a trade mark exist in respect of only some of the goods or services in respect of which the trade mark is applied for, the application is to be refused in relation to those goods and services only.””

18. The following principles are gleaned from the decisions of the EU courts in Sabel BV v Puma AG, Case C-251/95, Canon Kabushiki Kaisha v Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc, Case C-39/97, Lloyd Schuhfabrik Meyer & Co GmbH v Klijsen Handel B.V. Case C-342/97, Marca Mode CV v Adidas AG & Adidas Benelux BV, Case C-425/98, Matratzen Concord GmbH v OHIM, Case C-3/03, Medion AG v. Thomson Multimedia Sales Germany & Austria GmbH, Case C-120/04, Shaker di L. Laudato & C. Sas v OHIM, Case C-334/05P and Bimbo SA v OHIM, Case C-591/12P.

(a) The likelihood of confusion must be appreciated globally, taking account of all relevant factors;

(b) the matter must be judged through the eyes of the average consumer of the goods or services in question, who is deemed to be reasonably well informed and reasonably circumspect and observant, but who rarely has the chance to make direct comparisons between marks and must instead rely upon the imperfect picture of them he has kept in his mind, and whose attention varies according to the category of goods or services in question;

(c) the average consumer normally perceives a mark as a whole and does not proceed to analyse its various details;

(d) the visual, aural and conceptual similarities of the marks must normally be assessed by reference to the overall impressions created by the marks bearing in mind their distinctive and dominant components, but it is only when all other components of a complex mark are negligible that it is permissible to make the comparison solely on the basis of the dominant elements;

(e) nevertheless, the overall impression conveyed to the public by a composite trade mark may be dominated by one or more of its components

(f) however, it is also possible that in a particular case an element corresponding to an earlier trade mark may retain an independent distinctive role in a composite mark, without necessarily constituting a dominant element of that mark;

(g) a lesser degree of similarity between the goods or services may be offset by a great degree of similarity between the marks, and vice versa;

(h) there is a greater likelihood of confusion where the earlier mark has a highly distinctive character, either per se or because of the use that has been made of it;

(i) mere association, in the strict sense that the later mark brings the earlier mark to mind, is not sufficient;

(j) the reputation of a mark does not give grounds for presuming a likelihood of confusion simply because of a likelihood of association in the strict sense;

(k) if the association between the marks creates a risk that the public might believe that the respective goods or services come from the same or economically linked undertakings, there is a likelihood of confusion.

Comparison of goods

19. When making the comparison, all relevant factors relating to the goods in the specifications should be taken into account. In Canon Kabushiki Kaisha, the Court of Justice of the European Union (“CJEU”) stated that:

“23. In assessing the similarity of the goods or services concerned [...] all the relevant factors relating to those goods or services themselves should be taken into account. Those factors include, inter alia, their nature, their intended purpose and their method of use and whether they are in competition with each other or complementary.”

20. Guidance on this issue was also given by Jacob J (as he then was) in British Sugar Plc v James Robertson & Sons Limited (“Treat”) [1996] RPC 281. At [296], he identified the following relevant factors:

- “(a) The respective uses of the respective goods or services;
- (b) The respective users of the respective goods or services;
- (c) The physical nature of the goods or acts of service;
- (d) The respective trade channels through which the goods or services reach the market;
- (e) In the case of self-serve consumer items, where in practice they are respectively found, or likely to be found, in supermarkets and in particular whether they are, or are likely to be, found on the same or different shelves;
- (f) The extent to which the respective goods or services are competitive. This inquiry may take into account how those in trade classify goods, for instance whether market research companies, who of course act for industry, put the goods or services in the same or different sectors.”

21. In YouView TV Ltd v Total Ltd, [2012] EWHC 3158 (Ch), paragraph 12, Floyd J (as he then was) gave the following guidance on construing the words used in specifications:

“[...] Trade mark registrations should not be allowed such a liberal interpretation that their limits become fuzzy and imprecise: see the observations of the CJEU in Case C-307/10 The Chartered Institute of Patent Attorneys (Trademarks) (IP TRANSLATOR) [2012] ETMR 42 at [47]-[49]. Nevertheless, the principle should not be taken too far. Treat was decided the way it was because the ordinary and natural, or core, meaning of ‘dessert sauce’ did not include jam, or because the ordinary and natural description of jam was not ‘a dessert sauce’. Each involved a straining of the relevant language, which is incorrect. Where words or phrases in their ordinary and natural meaning are apt to cover the category of goods in question, there is equally no justification for straining the language unnaturally so as to produce a narrow meaning which does not cover the goods in question.”

22. The competing goods to be compared are shown in the following table:

Applied for goods being opposed (the ‘562 mark)	Opponent’s goods
Class 18: bags; pouches; textile bags; textile reusable bags; reusable bags; leather; clothing for pets; umbrellas; walking sticks; canes; metal parts of canes and walking-sticks; handles for canes and walking sticks.	See Annex A (covers various class 25 goods).

23. In the opponent’s statement of case, it sets out why it believes the various applied for goods are similar to those of the applicant. These were discussed at the hearing, and I shall go through them in turn.

Bags; pouches; textile bags; textile reusable bags; reusable bags

24. There is clear case law⁶ which indicates that ‘clothing’ in class 25 and clothing accessories which complement them, such as handbags, purses and wallets, are similar insofar as the intention is to create a coordinated look.⁷ Applying this approach, I consider the applied for bags to be an aesthetically complementary accessory to clothing and therefore they are similar to a low degree. Applying the principle set out above, I consider textile reusable bags to also be similar to a low degree.

⁶ El Corte Ingles SA v OHIM, Case T-443/05

⁷ Gitana v OHIM, Case T-569/11 and El Corte Ingles v OHIM, Case T-443/05

Clothing for pets

25. The opponent argues that pet clothes are very similar/interchangeable with baby's clothes and infant clothes. I completely disagree. I cannot envisage a time whereby one would substitute an article of child's clothing with that of a pet. They are dissimilar.

Walking sticks; umbrellas; canes; metal parts of canes and walking-sticks; handles for canes and walking sticks.

26. The opponent argues that there is very strong similarity between the goods listed above and its walking shoes, boots, mountaineering boots, hiking boots.
27. I do not consider there to be any similarity between the above mentioned goods. Whilst it may be, for example, the case that someone purchasing a walking stick/cane may also wear walking shoes, this is too broad a point to find similarity. Applying the Treat principles outlined above, there is no overlap in user or trade channels, other than they might be sold within the proximity of footwear. They are not in competition or complementary. They are dissimilar.

Leather

28. I take the term leather to be the raw material rather than goods made from leather which is a term which frequently appears in the specifications. I do not see any point of similarity, and nor have I been directed to, with the opponent's earlier relied upon goods. They are dissimilar.

OPP 432312

29. The competing goods relating to the '410 mark are as follows:

Applied for goods being opposed ('410 mark)	Opponent's goods
Class 3: Dentifrices; false nails; false eyelashes; cotton for cosmetic purposes. Class 4: Waxes [raw material]; beeswax for use in the manufacture of cosmetics; lanolin for use in the manufacture of cosmetics. Class 21: Cosmetic and toilet utensils; make-up removing	'493 mark: Class 3: Dentifrices; false nails; false eyelashes, cotton for cosmetic purposes,...and including; Reed diffusers; room fragrancing products,...nail polish remover pens, abrasive bands, sheets, strips, rolls,...cloth, sanding sponges,...all purpose cotton buds

appliances; applicators for cosmetics; aromatic oil diffusers, other than reed diffusers; reed diffusers being devices for diffusing perfumes, sold empty.	for personal use, cosmetic use, aromatherapy pillows. '826 mark: Class 4: Waxes (raw material); beeswax for use in the manufacture of cosmetics; lanolin for use in the manufacture of cosmetics

Class 3

30. The applied for class 3 goods are clearly identical to those covered by the earlier '493 registration.

Class 4

31. The applied for class 4 goods are clearly identical to those covered by the earlier '826 registration.

Class 21

Cosmetic and toilet utensils; applicators for cosmetics

32. The earlier relied upon goods are not for cosmetics or toilets and so there is no level of complementarity between the respective goods, i.e. utensils would not complement the cosmetics or toilets which they would be used for. They certainly are not in competition. The end users are only the same in the broadest sense, and not to the degree that similarity arises. Overall, the goods are not similar.

Make-up removing appliances

33. The applied for goods are tools that remove make-up from the skin. I note that the opponent's goods include "all purpose cotton buds for...cosmetic use". It may be that the cotton buds could be for removing make-up and therefore there is a degree of overlap in end user and trade channels. They do, however, differ in nature and are not in competition with one another. I find that they are similar to a degree above low but not as high as medium degree.

Aromatic oil diffusers, other than reed diffusers; reed diffusers being devices for diffusing perfumes, sold empty

34. I do not see any point of similarity between the above mentioned goods and those covered by the opponents goods.

Summary

35. None of the opposed '562 goods are similar to those covered by the earlier relied upon mark, except for "bags; pouches; textile bags; textile reusable bags; reusable bags" which are similar to a low degree to clothing.

36. All of the Class 3 and 4 goods of the applied for '410 mark is identical to those covered by the earlier relied upon '493 and '826 mark respectively. All of the applied for class 21 goods are dissimilar to the earlier relied upon marks, except for "make-up removing appliances" which are similar to a degree above low but not medium to "all purpose cotton buds for...cosmetic use".
37. In order for a likelihood of confusion to exist there must be a degree of similarity between the goods. For the goods where there is no similarity the opposition fails and then they shall not be considered any further.⁸

Average Consumer and the Purchasing Act

38. For goods where there is no similarity, there cannot be a likelihood of confusion and therefore they will not form part of the rest of this decision. For the remaining goods, as the case law above indicates, it is necessary for me to determine who the average consumer is for the respective parties' goods. I must then determine the manner in which the goods are likely to be selected by the average consumer. In Hearst Holdings Inc, Fleischer Studios Inc v A.V.E.L.A. Inc, Poeticgem Limited, The Partnership (Trading) Limited, U Wear Limited, J Fox Limited, [2014] EWHC 439 (Ch), Birss J (as he then was) described the average consumer in these terms:

"60. The trade mark questions have to be approached from the point of view of the presumed expectations of the average consumer who is reasonably well informed and reasonably circumspect. The parties were agreed that the relevant person is a legal construct and that the test is to be applied objectively by the court from the point of view of that constructed person. The words "average" denotes that the person is typical. The term "average" does not denote some form of numerical mean, mode or median."

39. As the goods are everyday products, the average consumer is likely to be a member of the general public. They are not particularly expensive goods and therefore the level of attention paid will be medium.
40. The goods are likely to be selected from the shelves of a retail outlet or its online equivalents. Consequently, visual considerations are likely to dominate the selection process. However, I do not discount an aural component to the purchase given that advice may be sought from retail assistants/advisors.

Comparison of Trade Marks

41. It is clear from Sabel BV v. Puma AG (particularly paragraph 23) that the average consumer normally perceives a mark as a whole and does not proceed to analyse its various details. The same case also explains that the visual, aural and conceptual similarities of the marks must be assessed by reference to the overall impressions created by the marks, bearing in mind their distinctive and dominant components. The CJEU stated at paragraph 34 of its judgment in Case C-591/12P, Bimbo SA v OHIM, that:

“[...] it is necessary to ascertain, in each individual case, the overall impression made on the target public by the sign for which registration is sought, by means of, inter alia, an analysis of the components of a sign and of their relative weight in the perception of the target public, and then, in the light of that overall impression and all factors relevant to the circumstances of the case, to assess the likelihood of confusion.”

42. It would be wrong, therefore, to artificially dissect the trade marks, although it is necessary to take into account the distinctive and dominant components of the marks and to give due weight to any other features which are not negligible and therefore contribute to the overall impressions created by the marks.

43. The marks to be compared are:

Applied for mark	Earlier mark
BAUM

Overall impression

44. The earlier mark consists of the words “La Baume”. The words are in cursive script which does make some, albeit small, contribution to the overall impression of the mark. The “La” element of the mark is less dominant than the word “Baume” given that the latter has 3 more letters, but I find that the overall impression resides in the mark as a whole.

45. The applied for mark consists of the single word “BAUM”. As this is the only element its overall impression resides in the word as a whole.

Visual comparison

46. The applicant argues that the combination of the earlier mark consisting of two words, being in cursive script and the word “La” giving the average consumer the impression it is French-based means that there is a “very different and overall feel to the Applicant’s mark”⁹.
47. In *HERNO S.p.A. v Miss Sparrow Ltd*¹⁰, Mr Iain Purvis KC, sitting as the Appointed Person, considered a comparison between a word-only mark and a figurative mark, where the figurative mark consisted of a word in a stylised font. He concluded that the correct approach of a tribunal when faced with such a comparison is to simply consider the similarity of the word itself to the figurative mark, bearing in mind that the particular font in which the word-only mark happens to be presented on the Register is irrelevant. In his decision, Mr Purvis states that¹¹:

“23. [...] It is not legitimate to perform a comparison between a word mark and a stylised word mark by considering specific ways in which the word might be presented. It is obvious why that was important. If the ‘CK’ in ‘CK CREACCIONES KENNY A had been assumed to be presented in the distinctive form adopted by Calvin Klein in their registered mark, the likelihood of confusion would obviously have been greater.

28. [...] A word mark protects the word itself and the comparison must be made on the basis of the word, not any particular presentation of the word. This excludes arguments based on presenting the word in a specific font, fancy script, roundel or other device. This is the case whether the word mark is the earlier mark (Faber) or the contested mark (Calvin Klein) or indeed both are word marks (Ontex). 19 Bimbo SA v OHIM, Case C-591/12P, paragraph 34 20 BL O/954/22 21 Ibid., paragraphs 36 - 42. 22 The reference to ‘Calvin Klein’ is a reference to Calvin Klein Trademark Trust v OHIM, T-185/07; ‘Faber’ is a reference to Faber Chimica v OHIM, [2005] ECR 11-1297; and ‘Ontex’ to Ontex v OHIM, T 353/04.

34. [...] The point is that the word mark is not limited to any particular script and therefore the script or font in which the device mark is written does not provide a point of distinction in itself. [...]

⁹ Applicant’s skeleton argument

¹⁰ BL O/954/22

¹¹ The reference to ‘Calvin Klein’ is a reference to Calvin Klein Trademark Trust v OHIM, T-185/07; ‘Faber’ is a reference to Faber Chimica v OHIM, [2005] ECR 11-1297; and ‘Ontex’ to Ontex v OHIM, T353/04.

38. The ultimate statutory question is whether 'because of the similarity' between the contested sign and the registered mark (and the goods and services), there is a likelihood of confusion. This is a multifactorial question which requires the tribunal to consider the whole of the contested sign and the overall impression it gives to the average consumer."

48. The opponent claims that the respective marks are visually similar as they share the common element "Baum", albeit with the applicant's mark ending with an "e" – "Baume". Whilst the earlier mark is stylised, this does not detract from it being viewed as La Baume.
49. The marks do coincide with the element "Baum" which is the only word in the applied for mark, and a significant part of the earlier mark. I do take into account that the earlier mark also begins with "La", ends with "e" and is stylised. Taking all of these factors into account I find there to be, at best, a medium degree of visual similarity.

Aural comparison

50. The opponent argues that the respective marks are aurally identical as "La" is insignificant. I disagree. The word "La" will be pronounced and therefore the marks cannot be aurally identical. The applicant argues that given the presence of the word "La" in the earlier mark, it would be heard as a French term and so there are clear aural differences. During the hearing I asked Mr Setchell whether the "e" at the end of "Baume" in the earlier mark alter the way it would be pronounced when compared to "Baum". Mr Setchell said that it does not necessarily change the overall sound unless the "e" is an acute "é", but that it is the overall perception of the mark that is key. I agree that it is the overall perception which is key for deciding whether there is a likelihood of confusion, but for assessing aural similarity I do not believe in this instance the inclusion of the letter "e" makes a difference.
51. I do note that the opponent's evidence¹² consists of numerous examples of names or words which end with the letter "e" but are pronounced in the same way. Some of the examples are Ann and Anne, old and olde, petite and petit. The example of Philip and Philippe does not support the opponent's argument as the endings do differ slightly.
52. However, as previously stated, I find that if the presence of the letter "e" at the end of "BAUME" does not alter the pronunciation from "BAUM" and therefore I agree with Miss Kikoni's assessment that these elements would be pronounced identically.

¹² Para 7 of Miss Kikoni's witness statement dated 22 September 2022

53. Taking all of the above into account, I find that the marks are aurally similar to a high degree.

Conceptual comparison

54. The applicant's evidence includes various extracts which are intended to demonstrate different meanings for Baum. These include, 1) Wikipedia extract¹³ showing details of the entry for "La Baume". The extract indicates that La Baume "is a commune in Haute-Savoie department in the Auvergne-Rhone-Alpes region in south-eastern France", 2) a dictionary.com entry for Baum which states that Baum was the surname of a Frank Baum (1856-1919) who was a US journalist, playwright and author, and a Vicki Baum (1888-1960) who was also a UK novelist, and 3) a Google translate extract which states that "la baume" translates to "the balm" and "baum" has no English translation.
55. There is no evidence to support that consumers will be aware of any of the above proposed meanings, and I am of the view that neither "BAUM" nor "La Baume" has any immediately graspable concept. I accept that "La Baume" will be perceived as being French, with the "La" element being recognised as "the", but no further meaning will be attributed to it.
56. The opponent argues that the marks are conceptually identical as they both mean "trees". Ms Kikoni argues that the identical concept is enhanced by the use made of the marks, but this does not form part of the assessment I am required to conduct and will not be considered any further.
57. In view of the above, I find that whilst neither mark has an immediately graspable meaning, the earlier mark is allusive of being French when the applied for mark does not. In view of the this, the respective marks are not conceptually similar.

Distinctive Character of The Earlier Trade Mark

58. In Lloyd Schuhfabrik Meyer & Co. GmbH v Klijsen Handel BV, Case C-342/97, paragraph 22 and 23, the CJEU stated that:

"In determining the distinctive character of a mark and, accordingly, in assessing whether it is highly distinctive, the national court must make an overall assessment of the greater or lesser capacity of the mark to identify the goods or services for which it has been registered as coming from a particular undertaking, and thus to distinguish those goods or services from those of other undertakings (see, to that effect, judgment of 4 May 1999 in Joined Cases C-108/97 and C-109/97 Windsurfing Chiemsee v Huber and Attenberger [1999] ECR I-0000, paragraph 49).

In making that assessment, account should be taken, in particular, of the inherent characteristics of the mark, including the fact that it does or does not contain an element descriptive of the goods or services for which it has been registered; the market share held by the mark; how intensive, geographically widespread and long-standing use of the mark has been; the amount invested by the undertaking in promoting the mark; the proportion of the relevant section of the public which, because of the mark, identifies the goods or services as originating from a particular undertaking; and statements from chambers of commerce and industry or other trade and professional associations (see Windsurfing Chiemsee, paragraph 51).”

59. Registered trade marks possess varying degrees of inherent distinctive character: perhaps lower where a mark may be suggestive or allusive of a characteristic of the goods, ranging up to those with high inherent distinctive character, such as invented words which have no allusive qualities.
60. There is no explicit claim from the opponent that it has an enhanced degree of distinctive character by virtue of the use made of it. It has filed evidence, but none of it is aimed at demonstrating use or support a claim of enhancement.
61. From an inherent perspective, the mark is not descriptive or allusive/suggestive of the goods. Further, as previously stated, I do not consider it to have any meaning to the average consumer. The presence of “La” would be recognised and understood to mean “the”, however when combined with “BAUME” it has no meaning. Therefore, I find that it has a high degree of inherent distinctive character.

Likelihood of confusion

62. In assessing the likelihood of confusion, I must adopt the global approach set out in the case law to which I have already referred above in this decision. Such a global assessment is not a mechanical exercise. I must also have regard to the interdependency principle, i.e., that a lesser degree of similarity between the goods may be offset by a greater degree of similarity between the marks, and vice versa.¹⁴ It is essential to keep in mind the distinctive character of the opponent's trade mark since the more distinctive the mark, the greater the likelihood of confusion. I must also keep in mind that the average consumer rarely has the opportunity to make direct comparisons between trade marks and must instead rely upon imperfect recollection.¹⁵

63. Confusion can be direct or indirect. Direct confusion involves the average consumer mistaking one mark for the other. I shall begin by considering a likelihood of direct confusion.

64. I have found as follows:

- The respective goods range from being identical to being similar to a low, or slightly above low but not medium degree.
- The marks are visually similar to a medium degree and aurally similar to a high degree. They are not conceptually similar.
- The earlier mark has a high degree of inherent distinctive character.
- Upon purchasing the goods, a medium degree of attention is paid following a predominantly visual inspection of the goods.

65. Taking into account the principles of imperfect recollection, the goods being identical, which offsets a lesser degree of similarity between the marks, together with notional and fair use of the applied for mark, I do not consider the differences between the marks (i.e. the presence of the "La", the stylisation and the letter "e" at the end of the word "Baum") to be sufficient for confusion not to arise. Therefore, I am satisfied that there is a likelihood of direct confusion for the goods which are identical. I do not consider there to be a likelihood of confusion for goods which are similar rather than identical, especially as they are similar to a low degree.

66. In the event I am found to be wrong about direct confusion, I shall also consider indirect confusion. In L.A. Sugar Limited v By Back Beat Inc, Case BL O/375/10, Iain Purvis K.C., sitting as the Appointed Person, explained that:

"16. Although direct confusion and indirect confusion both involve mistakes on the part of the consumer, it is important to remember that these mistakes are very different in nature. Direct confusion involves no process of reasoning - it is a simple matter of mistaking one mark for another. Indirect confusion, on the other hand, only arises where the consumer has actually recognized that the later mark is different from the earlier mark. It therefore requires a mental process of some kind on the part of the consumer when he or she sees the later mark, which may be conscious or subconscious but, analysed in formal terms, is something along the following lines: "The later mark is different from the earlier mark, but also has something in common with it. Taking account of the common element in the context of the later mark as a whole, I conclude that it is another brand of the owner of the earlier mark.

17. Instances where one may expect the average consumer to reach such a conclusion tend to fall into one or more of three categories:

(a) where the common element is so strikingly distinctive (either inherently or through use) that the average consumer would assume that no-one else but the brand owner would be using it in a trade mark at all. This may apply even where the other elements of the later mark are quite distinctive in their own right ('26 RED TESCO' would no doubt be such a case).

(b) where the later mark simply adds a non-distinctive element to the earlier mark, of the kind which one would expect to find in a sub-brand or brand extension (terms such as 'LITE', 'EXPRESS', 'WORLDWIDE', 'MINI' etc.)

(c) where the earlier mark comprises a number of elements, and a change of one element appears entirely logical and consistent with a brand extension ('FAT FACE' to 'BRAT FACE' for example)."

67. These examples are not exhaustive. Rather, they were intended to be illustrative of the general approach.¹⁶

68. In Aveda Corporation v Dabur India Ltd [2013] EWHC 589 (Ch), Arnold J (as he then was) considered in depth the correct application of the decision in case C-120/04 Medion AG v Thomson multimedia Sales Germany & Austria GmbH and whether there may be a likelihood of indirect confusion based on similar (rather than identical) elements and the imperfect recollection of the same, where those elements play an independent distinctive role within the marks. In that case, it was found that there was a likelihood of confusion based on the marks AVEDA vs DABUR UVEDA. Whilst it was considered that the introduction of DABUR was in that case sufficient to overcome a likelihood of direct confusion, there remained a likelihood of indirect confusion, as the consumer was still likely to imperfectly recollect the highly similar AVEDA/UVEDA elements of the marks.

69. Whilst I do not consider the above case to be on all fours with these proceedings, I find there to be similarities. The principle relating to a likelihood of indirect confusion based on the imperfect recollection of the similar elements (BAUME/BAUM) will be seen by consumers as indicative of an alternative mark from the same undertaking or economically linked undertaking¹⁷.
70. In view of the above, and subject to appeal, the opposition against trade mark application number 3703562 has failed and it shall proceed to registration for all of the applied for goods.
71. Subject to appeal, trade mark application number 3703410 shall be refused registration for the applied for class 3 and 4 goods in their entirety. The application shall proceed to registration for all of the remaining applied for goods.

COSTS

72. Opposition number 433695 against some of the class 18 goods has failed in its entirety, whereas opposition number 432312 has been successful against classes 3 and 4, but not 21.
73. As both parties have had a roughly equal measure of success, I decline to make an award in either party's favour. I shall, however, address some of the submissions raised.
74. During the hearing Mr Setchell highlighted that Ms Kikoni is asking 545 hours in total and at £19 per hour that would amount to £10,355. Ms Kikoni stated that for medical reasons the various tasks took "three times longer". I am sympathetic to Ms Kikoni's ill-health and wish her a speedy recovery, however this would not result in the applicant having to bear such costs when they amount to in excess of £10,355. Ms Kikoni also states that the applicant has acted unreasonably by adopting "dilatory tactics" and "having to deal with the different attorneys, repetitive and frustrating stuff". There is no evidence to support the applicant has acted unreasonably and upon reviewing the case this claim is unfounded.

¹⁷ Paragraph 17 of L.A. Sugar Limited v By Back Beat Inc., Case BLO-375/10

75. On balance, no award of costs either way is in my view fair and reasonable.
