We would like to apply for a trademark for the Phone Spot logo to protect our brand identity as we continue to grow. Phone Spot is the first of its kind in Scotland—a locally established mobile retail and repair business with a strong presence on high-footfall streets, including Princes Street in Edinburgh. Since launching, we have expanded to three additional branches and are now preparing to launch our e-commerce platform. As we scale both physically and digitally, it is essential to safeguard our logo, brand ethos, and reputation against unauthorised use or imitation. Trademarking the logo will ensure that our customers can continue to identify and trust the genuine Phone Spot service, while also allowing us to maintain consistency and credibility as we enter new markets.

WTF?! What The Fight?!

WTF is a generic term, I am only interested in it as part of the overall trademark being applied for and do not expect to protect or have sole rights to "WTF" specifically. The game is known as "What the Fight?!" but the overall caption "WTF?! What The Fight?!" is the actual branding for this specific card game created by myself. As a side note I intend to apply for additional trademarks in other merchandise as the game gains popularity. I intend to create clothing merchandise and other "WTF?! What The Fight?!" merchandise. For now I can only afford to trademark the name regarding category 28, I will file for subsequent classes and services as I start developing the business in those ways. I created this card game and the name and would like to protect my intellectual property
